

ABOUT ANTI-RAGGING SQUAD

An anti-ragging squad usually consists of faculty members, administrative staff, and sometimes senior students who are tasked with monitoring and preventing any instances of ragging on campus. Their primary responsibilities include:

- Educating students about the negative consequences of ragging.
- Conducting awareness campaigns and workshops to promote a positive and respectful campus culture.
- Responding promptly to reports or complaints of ragging and taking appropriate disciplinary action against the perpetrators.
- Providing support and assistance to victims of ragging.
- Collaborating with law enforcement if necessary to address severe cases of ragging that violate laws or campus regulations.
- The goal of an anti-ragging squad is to create a safe and inclusive environment for all students to learn and thrive without fear of harassment or intimidation.
